THEY were not wavering in the subject of government ownership of railroads may find comfort in the little vote that is giving the friends of the proposition an incident that is relevant to their contention. On the private side of the matter, Mr. Aldrich has said of the subject: "It is related that a friend—why not a friending with Mr. Aldrich—remarked upon the enthusiastic endorsement of government upon Mr. Aldrich on numerous railroad employees who were not at all in favor of it. You and I have heard equally enthusiastic. And therefore I thought of them and every one else." It is immaterial whether there is not actually occurred or not. It is immaterial whether Mr. Aldrich actually said that there were 2,000,000 of them and every one a voter. That is the fact, whether he said it or not and that fact is everywhere in the minds of the government directors of the railroads. The votes will never be bought of under government ownership. The efficiency, the economic soundness, the success of the railroads or of any other enterprise under government operation will essentially be subordinated to the one outstanding fact that everyone of the employees is a voter. The rights of the shippers, the rights of the taxpayers who must pay deficits, the rights of stockholders, may all be given minor consideration, for they are only indirectly affected. But the employees are directly affected by a raising of wages or a shortening of hours of labor, and their votes can and will be influenced by the action of the political director general. As a corrupting influence in American politics, there is no greater menace than government ownership.

In a New Year's greeting to the employees of the post office department Postmaster General Burleson says that "the postal service has been and is being maintained at a standard of efficiency its highest known in its history. For serious disregard of the facts this statement hardly can be excused by any of the many distortions of truth that have come from leaders of the administration during the war.

The closing of the Goldfield Consolidated properties will not serve as an incentive for increasing train service between the southern Nevada camps.

It is the policy of the United States to support the people of Cuba in their struggle for national independence and self-determination. The United States will continue to support the Cuban people in their struggle for national independence and self-determination.

It is a common mistake to think that the only way to improve the quality of the work is to increase the number of people working on it. This is not always the case. Sometimes, a smaller team can be more effective than a larger one. The key is to have the right people on the team, with the right skills and experience. It is also important to have a clear plan and to communicate well. This can help to ensure that everyone is working towards the same goal and that the work is done efficiently. In the end, the quality of the work is what matters most. It is the result of a team working together to achieve a common purpose.

What I'm also not going to do is to say that the the marriage, with Prince Yi, the younger brother and heir of the former king of Korea, is to be consummated within a few months. The marriage between the prince and the former crown prince, which is the first marriage of a marriage alliance between a member of the Japanese imperial family and the former emperor of Korea, is the climax of the Japanese new administration and the result of Japan's invasion of the country has been made a great event in addition to the betrothal of the imperial housewife.

A ceremony of "marriage" in the palace of the new was also held to review the marriage of the emperor, although a civil marriage with a Japanese noble woman was celebrated before the ceremony. At the same time, the emperor's regent was enthroned in the grand shrine dedicated to the great ancestor of the imperial house and the residence of the first emperor, Emperor Jimmu, the first emperor of Japan.

The wedding ceremony was held at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Smith, at 1000 N. 10th St. The bride, Miss Mary Smith, was accompanied by her father, Mr. J. H. Smith. The groom, Mr. John Smith, was accompanied by his father, Mr. J. H. Smith. The ceremony was officiated by Rev. J. H. Smith. The wedding party included the bride, groom, best man, maid of honor, bridesmaids, and flower girls. The reception was held at the home of the bride's parents. The wedding was a private affair and only family and friends were invited. The bride wore a white gown and the groom wore a dark suit. The ceremony was held at 2 p.m. and lasted about one hour. The reception continued until 8 p.m. The wedding was a beautiful and memorable occasion for all who attended.

To the Public:

I have opened in Reno, Nevada, an office fully equipped for the transaction of a general brokerage and investment business. To facilitate this business and properly serve the public, alliances have been made by me with the most responsible and representative brokerage, investment and bond houses of San Francisco, New York, Philadelphia and other eastern cities.

Twelve years ago I severed a protracted official connection with important interests in New York, and came to Nevada at the solicitation of the late Senator George S. Nixon. For two years I was connected with the Nixon National Bank, of Reno, and participated in the organization of both the Reno Clearing House Association and the Nevada State Bankers' Association, and was officially connected with both. Following this I became a Director and Secretary and Treasurer of the Goldfield Consolidated Mines Company and many other mining companies of importance, and was the Vice-President of John S. Cook & Co., Bankers of Goldfield, and of the Goldfield Tribune.

These business relations persisted for ten years and naturally have resulted in my becoming informed concerning general business, mining conditions, and investment possibilities within the State to a degree calculated to afford the utmost advantage.

I believe that I am unusually well equipped to serve the public in the purchase and sale of stocks and bonds, to supply information concerning mining conditions, and to give advice respecting investments, and facilitate the same. With the prospect of great improvement in all business conditions throughout the country, I am encouraged to believe that the mining interests of Nevada will share largely in the general prosperity.

It is my intention to conduct this business in a stable, safe and conservative manner, and to give customers the fullest protection, both pecuniary and moral. For instance, there are many holders of Liberty Bonds in Nevada who may wish to dispose of their holdings. With the arrangements I have made it is possible for me to secure for clients the full market value of their bonds based on the daily Stock Exchange quotations, together with the full face value of past due coupons, and the accrued interest on the bonds figured to the date of selling, less a nominal commission. Do not fail to consult me before disposing of your bonds to less advantage.

I invite from the public correspondence with regard to investments of all kinds. It will receive my prompt and earnest attention. Any business entrusted to me will be given careful and conscientious attention.
